Col. Robert Bingham

OL. ROBERT BINGHAM, the fourth Headmaster of the Bingham School, of the third generation since its foundation in 1793 (two years before the foundation of the University), was born September 5, 1588. He entered the Bingham School when not quite eleven, the University when not quite fifteen, and graduated with first distinction, in the Class of IS57, when not quite nineteen. In July of that year he joined his father and elder brother as junior partner in the firm of W. J. Bingham & Sons. Soon after the Civil War broke out he raised a company of Volunteers, 128 in all, only four of them belonging to the slave-holding class, and it was assigned to the 44th Regiment, in what became at length MacRae's Brigade, in fleth's Division, A. P. Hill's Corps, and he was one of General Lee's 7,592 armed men at Appomattox Court Honse and saw the last sun rise on what was left of the Army of Northern Virginia. As he was never sick or wounded, he was on the firing line all the time.

General MacRae always made the 44th Regiment the centre of his brigade, and when the only flag the regiment had ever had was so shot away as to be no longer an ensign, and a new flag was issued, the torn and tattered remnant of the old flag was given to Robert Bingham because he was the only officer in the regiment who had always been under fire with it, except when he was a prisoner for a while, a fine testimonial to brave and faithful service. And this fragment of the 44th's Regimental Flag, which is framed and hangs in Judge Robert Worth Bingham's office in Louisville, Kentucky, is to be handed down as a trophy from generation to generation of the Binghams.

hams. "A detailed history of the men who followed Lee, and above all, an account of their development in every sphere since the war, would form a most valuable contribution, not only to the annals of the South, but to the record of American progress and expansion in the broadest sense. To call them by name as they rise in the retrospect of memory is an easy task; for age has not withered them, and they respond as I saw them with the dew of youth upon them—that same gray line which for four years bore the cause of the South aloft on its bayonets. There is Robert Bingham, the heir of three generations of scholastic tradition, an intellectual power in the evolution of the South, the renown of whose great School, like that of Eton or Rugby, has passed beyond the sens." (Shepherd's Life of R. E. Lee, 9, 97.)

When the Civil War ended, Robert Bingham returned to his place in the School, which his elder brother had held together during the war under the most adverse conditions.

At Col. William Bingham's death, in 1873, the School had only thirty-five tuition fees and pupils from only seven States. In Robert Bingham's hands it has attracted pupils from the United States Army, from 39 States of the Union, from Canada, Mexico, Honduras, and Nicaragua in North America, from two countries in South America, from four in Europe, from four in Asia, from Cuba in the Atlantic, and from the Philippines in the Pacific, an area of patronage second to none in the Southern States, and equaled by but few schools in the United States.

But Robert Bingham has been more than a Confederate Soldier, and more than the Headmaster of the Bingham School.

In 1884 he was invited to read a paper before the National Educational Association in Madison, Wisconsin, which he called "The New South." This paper was reproduced and was widely distributed, and was called by one of North Carolina's most distinguished citizens, "the finest brief he had ever seen on any subject."

In 1900, Harper's Magazine published Colonel Bingham's "Ex-Slaveholder's View of Our Negro Problem," which has been accepted as a classic on the subject, and 3,000 copies of it have been called for from all over the country and abroad, and it has been repeated on several platforms, both in the South and in the North.

In September, 1904, the North American Review, which up to that time had never accepted a paper by a North Carolinian, published Colonel Bingham's "Sectional Misunderstandings," giving for the first time the documentary proof that Jefferson Davis and Robert E. Lee were taught at West Point, that secession was considered one of the reserved rights of the States, by the Framers of the Constitution, and more than 6,000 copies of this paper, in four editions, have been called for from all parts of the country.

In December of 1904, Colonel Bingham was one of the four men invited to speak at the Annual Banquet of the New York Southern Societies in the Waldorf-Astoria, his subject being the "Status of the South Before 1860; the Decay of that Status and Its Restoration." This paper was received with most marked attention and has been reproduced and widely distributed in the South and in the North.

In October, 1908, as President of the North Carolina Historical Society, Colonel Bingham treated the whole subject of Secession:

- I. As viewed by the Framers of the Constitution; II. As practiced by the U.S. Government in the Secession from England; in the Secession from the "Articles of PERPETUAL UNION," which lasted only 13 years; as sustained three times, in the Secession of Texas from Mexico; in the Secession of Cuba from Spain; in the Secession of Panama from the United States of Colombia; and resisted only in the legal and constitutional, but most unwise, Secession of the Southern from the Northern States:
- III. As attempted by the Confederate States.

This paper has been called by many an unanswerable argument in favor of the theory of Secession as a merely academic question, while condemning the theory when attempted in practice.

Colonel Bingham has been called on often to address college audiences, Y. M. C. A. Associations, Masonic Lodges, educational meetings and the like, in this and in many other States, and has always been listened to with close attention because he always has something to say, and says it in strong and simple English.

Some years ago he was called on for a temperance speech in Charlotte, which Governor Vance called the best temperance speech he had ever heard

Asheville is the only place in the South where Compulsory Education with the NECESSARY APPROPRIATION FOR BUILDINGS AND TEACHERS, is in successful operation. The Labor Unions and nonunion men asked Colonel Bingham to speak to them in joint meeting twice, and again to their wives, mothers, sisters, and daughters once, and against the wishes of many of the harger property holders the measure was carried by the "Labor Vote," only one man voting against it, and they all agreed that Colonel Bingham carried this important measure, and that no other man could have carried it against the strong opposition of the larger taxpayers. Having dealt, during the Civil War, with the 124 non-slaveholding men whom he carried to Lee's Army, he understood this class of men and knew how to lead them in peace, as he had done in war, realizing that they are the very bone and sinew of the country, brave, strong and loyal, and of the purest Anglo-Saxon blood to be found now anywhere in the world.

But the most striking and effective of his addresses was in the University Chapel, June 3, 1907, at the Fiftieth Anniversary of the graduation of the Class of 1857. This was the largest but, at the Intern Finder Finder and the graduation of the class of 150° in the targets class that had ever graduated, by in all, every one of whom entered the Confederate Army, and after fifty years but fifteen were left. "rari nanks in gurgite vaslo," a few survivors still aftoat on the great deep which had engulfed so many, ten of whom were present. Being the youngest member of the class, Colonel Bingham was made Class Orator, and he told of what this remnant, some of them decrepit with age, and some with wounds, had seen and been part of in these most wonderful fifty years in the world's history since the Christian Era. The scene was most realistic, dramatic and pathetic. The tears of the outgoing generation mingled freely with those of the incoming generation, and no one who was present can ever forget how the audience was swayed. Colonel Bingham has passed his seventy-sixth year; but "his eye is not dim and his natural force is not abated."

We repeat the wish for him which Horace made for Augustus, "Serus in Coelum redeas."

Chapel Hill

There's a spot in Carolina where the skies are ever fair, Where magnolias waft their fragrance through the soft and balmy air, Where the roses and the lilies in their lavish beauty bloom, And the elamb'ring honeysuckle lends the breeze its rich perfume.

There the trees are green in summer and in Autumn erimson-gold, And in winter brown leaves rustle to the wind-swept, silent wold, And through every changing season fairest beauty changeless dwells, In the meadows and the woodlands and the quiet, shady dells.

Circled round that charmed spot the hills in loving shelter stand, Shutting out all woe and turmoil from that fair, enchanted land, Shutting in the peace and beauty that forever tranquil reigns, Rapturous peace, bewitching beauty, foes to want and care and pain.

Chapel Hill! What glamour lingers round thy ever blessed name, In thy loveliness abiding through all changing years the same; How the thought of thee forever thrills with fondest love and pride All thy loyal sons and daughters, thousands scattered far and wide.

Stately hills and spacious campus pass before fond memory's eyes; Cherished faces unforgotten gleam from out the years gone by. Chapel Hill! with clinging memories, ever blessed, ever dear, Long the thought of thee shall hallow every fleeting, changing year.

ALICE HARPER

The University Site

HAPEL HILL and vicinity has been an interesting place since the world began. Several ages ago, when dodoes were mere casualties, Piney Prospect (a corruption of Point Prospect) was a headland jutting out into the bay that stretched from Georgia to Maine. Three miles to the west is an innocent looking hillside cow pasture that once bellowed forth lava and ashes. There is a black streak of very brittle rock that crosses the Durham road at the top of the hill the other side of the first bridge going toward Durham, that marks the presence of a once dangcrous fissure in the volcanic days of geologic youth.

The first inhabitants were, naturally, Indians, and a very sorry lot they were too. From the numerous relics, it is plain that they were a rougher and less advanced tribe than their neighbors. The almost total absence of tools of cultivation seems to indicate that they depended almost entirely on hunting and fishing as a means of livelihood. Arrow heads are a common find on the athletic field; so it is plain that the Indians also recognized the value of this location as a place to teach the young how to fight. These Indians disappeared long before the arrival of the whites, because they were probably too weak to resist the competition of their more advanced neighbors.

A majority of the first white settlers of Orange County "were of plain, honest, unambitious stock," who had here sought peace from the Indian wars and worries of Pennsylvania. A large percentage of the present inhabitants of this vicinity are the descendants of these people. Practically every name on a certain petition sent to the General Assembly from this neighborhood some years before the Revolutionary War is a familiar Chapel Hill name today. Most of them have representatives present in large numbers. Samples are Pendergraph, Lloyd, Blackwood, Pope, Clark, and Neville. These people are largely farmers of the conventional easy-going type.

The soil is very poor, being in the main decayed lava and old sea bottom, but it is well drained, there being no swamps or low, wet places of any kind.

On November 1, 1792, six men, commissioners from the trustees of the as yet unborn University of North Carolina, set out to choose a site for the institution. Their instructions were to take Cyprett's Bridge as a center and to select any location they saw fit within a fifteen-mile radius of this spot. The only restriction to the choice was the legislative mandate that the "site of the University shall not be located within five miles of the seat of government or any of the places of holding the courts of law or equity." This last provision was probably due to the "drunkenness and rowdyism" always attendant upon sessions of court.

Two possible places were considered: Haywood, on the fork of Haw River; and New Hope Chapel Hill. The farmers around the latter location made the most favorable offers and the commissioners so reported to the trustees.

The trustees, after having accepted this report, appointed a committee with Davie as its head to definitely locate the grounds and mark out the building sites of the expected town of Chapel Hill. This name was taken from the chapel or church on the hill, rumored to have been located under the great oaks just west of the Peabody Building. This chapel was a monument to the unsuccessful attempt of the Church of England to establish a church in this associates chose the exact spot is too familiar to repeat.

Davie, however, had excellent reasons for his choice. The location was ideal. Just where the land slopes rapidly to the bottom of the prehistoric sea, the drainage is perfect. Two streams, one on each side of the village, guarantee this. The elevation is 503 feet above the sea. The country is rolling and well wooded. Davie himself in his report describes the water. "There is nothing more remarkable in this extraordinary place than the abundance of springs of the purest and finest water, which burst from the sides of the ridge, and which have been the subjects of admiration both for hunters and for travelers ever since the discovery and settlement of this part of the country." Science has reduced this rhetoric and tradition to the following wet, cool, highly gratifying facts. The college well analyzes 132 parts of solid matter to each million parts ; loss on ignition 32, hardness 40, chlorine 17.5, oxygen consuming capacity 1.36, nitrogen as nitrites 0, as nitrates 2.05, ammonia as free .028, albuminoid .093.

Aside from the advantageous health conditions, the surrounding country affords many points of interest from which are gathered myriad stories, a large number of which are grouped around Piney Prospect. On the left of the path leading from the east gate to the cemetery through Battle's Park, a careful searcher can find a few scattered brick bats, all that remains of the first college astronomical observatory in America. It was erected in 1831 by President Caldwell at his own expense. It had a short existence of seven years, poor material followed by decay being responsible for its abandonment in 1838.

Passing on, one approaches Pinev Prospect itself, which is marked by a cairn of rocks. Dr. Kemp P. Battle, the beloved "Old Pres.," started the pile by heaping up a small beginning, and then he placed a placard requesting that each pilgrim make his contribution.

THE CAIRN OF ROCKS IN BATTLE PARK

The collection has now grown to be about ten feet square and five feet high. It furnishes an excellent opportunity to view miles and miles of the old sea bottom, now farm land and wooded hill.

Beside the path, about a hundred feet west of the promonotory, lies a smooth rounded stone protruding about eighteen inches out of the soil. This rock is streaked with iron rust: which fact has given color to the famous Dromgoole myth.

Dromgoole was a Virginian who came to enter the University in 1831, but after quarreling with a member of the faculty, he refused to proceed with his examinations and disappeared from Chapel Hill. He was never heard of again after that. The myth runs that he and a rival quarreled over Dromgoole's sweetheart, Miss Fannie. A challenge and a duel followed. Dramatically the duel took place in the neighborhood of the favorite retreat of the lovers. Miss Fannie, hearing of the quarrel, rushed to the scene of the duel, but she arrived only in time to see her lover drop dead on the ground; whereupon she fainted and died by his side. The two were hastily buried together under the rock. Now the spring a few hundred feet south of Piney Prospect is called Miss Fannie's Spring. Unfortunately for the lovers of romance, facts do not seem to bear out the popular version of the tale.

South of the Prospect are a few rifle pits dug by Wheeler's Cavalry as they were retreating before four thousand Federal Cavalry under General S. B. Atkins. This was in April of '65, and the war was practically over. The Confederate troops remained on the Hill two days. They left on the afternoon of April 16. The Federal troops role into town at eight o'clock the next morning, and remained for several days. Very little permanent damage was done during their sojourn, the most important being the capture of the heart of the President's daughter by the General of the Union troops. The couple were soon married.

There are many other points of interest to the lover of nature. Hills and dales, beautiful shady walks, and varied scenery, make walking a favorite pastime with the students.

MEETING OF THE WATERS

Popular spots are the Meeting of the Waters, the Fern Banks, the Battle's Park Paths, and the Arboretum.

The one great disadvantage of Chapel Hill as the seat of a great State University is its inaccessibility. It is safe to say that the greatest drawback to the welfare and growth of the University has been the fact that poor roads and railroads have kept it hidden from and unknown to the people of the

The University Site

State. The only railroad accommodation is an eleven mile branch of the Southern Railway with a station a mile from the postoffice. The schedule and speed are so inconvenient that ten or twelve automobiles find profitable employment carrying passengers between Chapel Hill and Durham, ten miles away. Two townships around Chapel Hill have recently voted substantial bond issues for a proposed railroad line from Greensboro direct through Chapel Hill, and on beyond to the coast. Chapel Hill has recently been connected with all the large cities and towns of the State by being on the East to West road through the State, thus making it convenjent for automobilists.

Present indications are that soon Chapel Hill will regain its old position as regards accessibility. When the University was founded the two main roads of the State crossed on the top of the Hill: the Petersburg to Pittsboro road, and the New Bern to Greensboro road. Along these crude arteries of a primitive civilization flowed the commerce and intellect of a state.

VIEW IN BATTLE PARK

With the railroads eame a change. The wagon roads lost their importance. When the North Carolina railroad was being laid out, two routes were under consideration, one by Chapel Hill and the other by Hillsboro. Better grades and the influence of the majority of the stockholders, who lived along the proposed Hillsboro route, caused the latter to be chosen. Eventually a branch was run into Carrboro.

The tendency from the early fifties almost to the present has been to encourage isolation. The idea then prevalent was a selfish one. The University was considered as a place of retirement to develop gentlemen of culture. It was the haven for the lucky few, and it was desirable to be cut off from the distractions and temptations of the busy world. Now a new spirit, which says that the University belongs to the whole people, is sweeping over the institution, and there is a possibility of Chapel Hill being as easily reached as any town in North Carolina. This will be a great impetus to the present Extension Movement, and to the popularity and consequent value of the University.

The University in Service to the People of the State

S INCE the early times of its establishment the University has been serving the State of North Carolina. Students have all along, from 1795 to the present time, received within the familiar campus walks a training and an ambition which in later life have enabled them to become leaders, and in this capacity to mould and raise the life of the people of the State. This kind of service is best exemplified in the services rendered North Carolina by such men as Murphey, Wiley, Vance, and Aycock. By strengthening these men in their formative years for the task of leadership, the University served the State effectively and well.

This same kind of direct, helpful service is going on today. Young men are being trained in the University now who will in the next few years be leaders in North Carolina.

But it is of another and different kind of service that this article desires to treat. It has been said that every State University's rightful work is twofold. As a part of a great State's educational system the University should set standards and train men within its own walls, and it should carry its knowledge out into the State and apply it it in creative helpfulness. In this latter class of work the University of North Carolina is deeply interested at the present time. To such an extent is this the case that under the inspiring leadership of President E. K. Graham the ambition of the University—which is daily being hammered by a constructive program into an actuality—demands that the University have a direct and helpful relation with every community and every person in North Carolina. A truly statewide ministry of service, and nothing short of this is planned.

In order to carry out this purpose, the University has established its Bureau of Extension. Working in the main through this Bureau, the University is finding its way into the schools, the churches, the homes, the factories, and the business houses everywhere in North Carolina. The work of the Bureau has been separated into several divisions by the Director, Dr. L. R. Wilson, and these will be taken up in order, together with other features of University activity which especially touch the State, irrespective of whether they are parts of the Bureau's regular scheme or not.

GENERAL INFORMATION

The Bureau of Extension attempts to give, through loans from the Library and information secured from members of the Faculty and students, answers to any and all questions which may be asked it. That there is a big need for just such work as this is shown by the fact that, during the past year, the Bureau loaned 532 books from the Library, sent out 1,997 copies of bulletins which had been prepared to answer general and specific questions, and mailed replies to 1,714 letters of inquiry. Dr. L. R. Wilson says that "searcely a township in North Carolina has failed to be reached in some one of these ways."

DEBATE AND DECLAMATION

It is the object of the University to stimulate public discussion and debating in every section of the State. This it does in large part through the High School Debating Union of North Carolina. This Union was organized by the Di and Phi Societies and the Bureau of Extension, during the year 1912-13. The subject discussed that year was woman suffrage, and the enrollment of schools was ninety. In the final contest at Chapel Hill the Aycock 'Memorial Cup was won by the Pleasant Garden High School. In 1913-14 the subject discussed was that of the initiative and referendum, and the enrollment of schools was one hundred and fifty. The Winston-Salem High School won the Aycock Cup in the final contest at Chapel Hill, which was staged in Memorial Hall on April 3rd, before an audience of two thousand.

This past year has been the most successful of all for the Debating Union. The enrollment of schools has reached two hundred and fifty, and the number of counties represented eighty-eight. The question of ship subsidies has been the subject for debate this year.

For the aid of high school debaters a seventy-page handbook is published each year by the University. This contains material on both sides of the query, outlines, articles, and references, and it is sent to anyone desiring it in the State. In addition to these bulletins, one entitled "Public Discussion and Debate" has been published and has met with a big demand from all sections. This bulletin contains suggested methods for public discussion, briefs, outlines, references, queries, lists of handbooks and aids, and a model constitution for a high school literary society.

CORRESPONDENCE COURSES

Many people desire to pursue courses in the University who are prevented by various reasons from coming to Chapel Hill. To this large body of people the University goes by means of well organized correspondence courses. Thirty-three courses are now offered by correspondence, sixteen of which lead to University degrees. All of these courses are given by members of the Faculty, who receive no compensation for this special service. This division of extension work is under the supervision of Dr. L. A. Williams of the School of Education. Courses are given by correspondence in English, Latin, German, History, Electrical Engineering, Education, Mathematics, Geology, and Economies.

LECTURES

The Bureau of Extension has systematized the University's service of furnishing lecturers and speakers for educational and other meetings. A series of one hundred and one subjects, embracing History, Literature, Travel, Fine Arts, Agriculture, Engineering, Sanitation, and Country Life was arranged in 1913-14, and speakers were furnished from the University Faculty for one hundred and thirty-two communities, to audiences numbering more than thirty thousand. The demand for speakers was so great that one hundred and twenty-eight invitations had to be declined.

During this year the number of lectures offered has been increased to one hundred and twenty-eight, and the demand for lecturers has increased over last year's demand. No charges are ever made for the lectures other than for the traveling expenses of the lecturer.

THE NORTH CAROLINA CLUB

The North Carolina Club, of which Prof. E. C. Branson is President and Mr. F. P. Graham, Secretary, is the central body of the various County Clubs of the

The University in Service to the People of the State

University. It is the organization through which surveys of the various counties of the State are made. It is the form for definite discussions and fact gathering as to North Carolina's economic and social resources and needs. It is a pioneer club among American Universities.

The club compiles many facts relating to the life of the State as a whole and to the counties individually, and furnishes this information to the people of the State. Suggestive of the line of study fostered by the club is the subject for one of its meetings, "The Food Producing and Wealth Retaining Power of North Carolina," which was discussed by Mr. F. R. Yoder of Catawba County, on October 21, 1914.

As much as any movement that could be undertaken, the division of home county surveys, guided by Professor Branson through the North Carolina Club, bids fair to contribute to life in the State in the next few years to come. To a North Carolinian there is no study which should be so interesting and important as the study of his home State and his home county. This is the basis on which the North Carolina Club is building.

MUNICIPAL AND LEGISLATIVE REFERENCE

One object of the Bureau of Extension has been to supply the city, county, and State law-making bodies with sources to which they can turn for comparative legislative material. Drs. C. L. Raper and J. G. deR. Hamilton have conducted the activities of the bureau along this line. They have placed the resources of the University Library at the command of city boards of aldermen and those interested in county and State legislation. They have made addresses over the State on taxation and kindred subjects, and have brought out a number of articles of importance, among others one entitled "A Plea for a Constitutional Convention," by Dr. Hamilton, and one entitled "Our Taxation Problem," by Dr. Raper.

EDUCATIONAL INFORMATION AND ASSISTANCE

To use the expression of Director L. R. Wilson, "The most vital link binding the University to the State, and conversely the State to the University, is the School of Education." In 1913-14, the school organized a department of general educational information and assistance. This department responds to every call made upon it for help. This it does through visitation of schools, lectures, correspondence, correspondence courses, instruction given in the Summer School, and through a series of letters and study outlines, which are a regular feature of the University News Letter. Another feature of helpfulness maintained is that of a teachers' bureau, by means of which school boards and committees are enabled to secure competent teachers.

The University in Service to the People of the State

PUBLICATIONS

The Extension series of Bulletins, eleven of which have been issued, have done an immense amount of good. They have been in wide demand and have elicited much praise. These bulletins have been: "A Professional Library for Teachers in Secondary Schools," "Addresses on Education for Use in Declaiming, Essay Writing and Reading," "Extension Lectures for North Carolina Communities," "Correspondence Courses," "The Initiative and Referendum," "Public Discussion and Debate," "University Extension," "Cooperative Institutions Among the Farmers of Catawba County," "Syllabus of Home-County Club Studies," "Extension Lectures and Correspondence Courses," "Ship Subsidies."

In November, 1914, the Bureau of Extension began publication of the University News Letter. This publication is issued every week, and at present is sent to a list of 4,000 citizens of the State. It presents to the people the various activities of the University. It contains, regularly, letters from the School of Education and debate outlines, in addition to the findings of the North Carolina Club and other special features. It is a live, interesting, stimulating publication.

The editorial board consists of Prof. E. C. Branson, Dr.J. G. deR.Hamilton, Prof. Z.V. Judd, Mr. S. R. Winters, and Dr. L. R. Wilson.

Growing in importance and number each year, the athletic contests for the high schools of the State carried on by the Greater Council and other organizations of the University, are proving distinctly helpful to the secondary school life of the State. They now include the Inter-Scholastic Track Meet, which is held each spring on the same date with the final contest of the Debating Union, and championship contests in football, basketball, and baseball. Hardly any movement carried on from Chapel Hill as a center is meeting with more approval or popularity in North Carolina than these contests. They give excellent training to the young athlete, and they stimulate within him a worthy school pride.

THE SUMMER SCHOOL

A most vital agency of helpfulness to North Carolina teachers is the University Summer School. Under the capable guidance of Director N. W. Walker, this feature of University activity is raising the standard of efficiency of the teachers of the State.

In 1914 the enrollment of students in the Summer School was five hundred and nincty-six, and the members of the faculty numbered thirty-three, besides several lecturers of national prominence who came to discuss special topics with the teachers. Regular University credit courses were offered that year for the first time, and these courses were pursued by more than one hundred students. Among other things of value, one excellent, permanent feature of the School is Rural Life Week. During this week each year conferences on important problems connected with rural life are held.

The Summer School occupies a vitally helpful field in the State's education scheme, and it can be expected to render, each year, an increasingly important service.

THE STUDENT BODY AND THE EXTENSION MOVEMENT

Into the work of bringing the University and the people closer together, the students of the University enter with a spirit of absolute cooperation. Under the leadership of the Greater Council, they organize high school athletic contests, and entertain the athletes and the debaters at final contests at Chapel Hill. Through the North Carolina Club and the various county clubs they make definite studies of home-state and home-county problems. Their interest, their enthusiasm, and their effort constitute one of the most valuable factors of the University in its attempt at State-wide extension.

AS TO THE FUTURE OF THE WORK

We have seen from this brief review somewhat of the work which the University is doing for the people of North Carolina, apart from elassroom instruction given to the students at Chapel Hill. With not the least abatement in her high scholarship, the University of North Carolina—one of the four Southern Universities to be placed in the foremost group of American educational institutions by the United States Bureau of Education—has her face turned to the plain folks at home. She is bending every effort to serve them.

The belief is harbored by those in charge at Chapel Hill that in her efforts to serve wisely and well the people of North Carolina, the University will be cheerfully supported by the State to the end that "Out of the State in its complex development there shall come no cry for guidance which is not met with immediate answer by its University."

"In this business of living one cannot hire a substitute." Harold Bell Wright

Full sixteen years, or less, or mayhap more, We've spent in study, work—more often play, To reach the goal we've gained today. More than a fourth of life's allotted score! And what is this we've planned so long before? A jest? A prize? A final goal, ye say? A work consummate, so that now we lay Our tasks aside, aside this antique lore?

Ah, no! We have but won a practice fight, That we should know if weakness or if might Be ours to start our fight to live a life. We've helped, been helped, and gained thereby, repute, But now, we'll find there's not a substitute. Who'll fight and win for us our present strife?

D. H. KILLIFER, 1915.

Senior Class History

Some said, "History is the biography of great men." If that is true, this is not a history, because this is the story of the four years development of a handful of typical young Americans who, being drawn from every possible variety of situation, were thrown together in a little village isolated from the rest of the world. To begin with they had only one thing in common—aim. With varying speeds, abilities, desires, plans, and modifications they traveled their common road. There were quarrels, rivalries, and hates among the jostling throng. Groups formed and separated themselves from the rest. The weak fell behind; some left the road for other roads that led to the same place; others came in from other paths to take their places. But as mile post after mile post was passed, the strife and tunult became less and less, the gaps grew fewer and smaller, and finally all marched breast with breast.

Now, with hands joined, they stand united at the goal, but they have found that they have not reached the goal at all, for in truth it is only the starting point. They know that the way is rough and the path only partly marked. The hands must unclasp; each man must run his own race. But because their aim will still be the same as before, and because they this once stood with hands clasped, they will scatter through different paths still united. The intangible but indestructible spirit called friendship has knit its fabric through and through, and around and around. The fabric will stretch to the ends of the earth and not break; it will wear until the close of the three score and ten and not rot; it will endure all weather and all climates and neither lose the purity of its whiteness nor the luster of its sheen.

The set of mere incidents this group of men has turned into history do not count so much after all, save as they worked for the final realization of true values. And as a matter of fact the Class of 1915 is just an ordinary typical class. In some details it has surpassed its immediate predecessors; in others it has been surpassed. In some ways it merely marked time; in others it progressed.

Its presidents have all been typical ones. Jones, Freshman president, was the usual Prep. School candidate. Wooleott, Sophomore, was the athletic hero of the class. Fuller, Junior, was the man busy with student activities. Eutsler was the usual dark horse, "Who-would-have-thought-it-last-year" man.

The class has produced no great athletes. They come only once or twice in a student generation. She has only one 'Varsity team captaincy.

While her number includes the student with the greatest scholarship record ever made at Carolina, she has not been noted for scholarship since only seven men wear the coveted Phi Beta Kappa key.

Her numbers are below the normal for the last few years. Two hundred and twenty entered in the fall of 1911 as against the usual two hundred and fifty or more. Only sixty-six have now reached the end in place of the usual seventy-five or so.

In spite of the above facts, however, the class is a strong one. It does not have its distinctive characteristics that mark it from the other classes. Her chief product has been public-spirited men. Instead of producing types, she has been manufacturing citizens, and in the process of manufacture these citizens have met and helped solve problems in every range of human activity. Of course they do not claim the undivided honor of having solved these problems. The class was caught up in the forward current of things, and she merely joined her powers to the forward movement. Where there have been pullings back, they were the result of honest conviction, not of littleness.

A contrast of conditions four years ago with today shows that much progress has been made in hazing problems, politics, fraternities, morality, and athletics. In all of these factors 1915 has played an important part.

It can truly be said that 1915 stopped hazing. The class before her was the last to commit a deliberately planned act of hazing. Against the anti-hazing spirit, largely developed by 1915, a few individuals made feeble protest, but in vain.

Dirty politics has ceased since the class arrived as Freshmen. At that time there was a remnant of one of the most harmful political rings Carolina has ever seen. The last feeble kick of organized selfish politics died in the Spring of 1914. In this connection it might be said that the compulsory athletic fee, by making the Athletic Association embrace the entire student body, has removed the last important ground of bitterness between the two factions. There is probably no more democratic student body in a college of this size or character in the United States.

Gambling, drinking, and immorality are no longer tolerated by the sentiment of the student body. They exist, of course, but not to the degree and not with the sanction of student sentiment as before. In a contest of student sentiments and beliefs in the Spring of 1914, the student body emphatically expressed itself as opposed to gambling and drinking. The other went earlier.

From a factor in State athletics only, Carolina in the last two years has become a factor in Southern athletics. The class has had its little share in this movement also.

And so after all, as the members of the class look back, they realize that it is a glorious class with a good, honest record behind it. When they finally come to measure up values, they realize that the greatest record to leave behind is not one in scholarship, athletic attainments, numbers, or offices held, but in making a better place for theirs to play and work in. With the belief that she has made the place better by her presence, the class of dear old 1915 bows herself off the stage.

Hubert earned the title of "Honey Boy" Bailey in his Sophomore year when he broke up the Virginia game at Greensboro with a triple. The is one of the best outfielders that Carolina ever had. Quiet and unassuming, he may always be seen where duty calls. Physically he is one of the least in the class, but you ean't always go by outward appearances. He may always be seen at the postoffice at mail time. Furthermore he always gets a letter. Fellows who know him best say that all those letters have a meaning. Hubert is one of the good all-'round men in the class.

Here is one of those hard-working men of the world, who went out to see how it all looked and came back as a loyal son to get the "skin." As President of the Sophomore Class of the graduating class of 1914, he was known and liked by everybody. Upon his return to enter 1915, he has distinguished himself by his "1's." Our adopted brother is congenial with those who know him or give him a chanee to be, but he doesn't seek anybody out, because he likes to attend to his own business too well.

Say, have you ever seen Avon dance? Not Well, he's as graceful as a swan on a balmy lake. This quality makes Avon the best dancer in college and consequently much admired by the ladies. Naturally enough, then, he likes to be among the girls as much as the girls like for him to be. Among men Avon is somewhat seelnsive. He has a way of picking a few companions with whom he is constantly in company. Taking part in all social functions, he goes his way in college, and dances through life trying to teach others how to be as fortunate and as successful as he is.

Boushall is one of the "of course" men everybody counts on when they want to start anything for the good of the class or college. If you would follow the triumphal trail of his activities, you will begin on the floor of the ball room and end up at a Y. M. C. A. prayer meeting. Leaving no sphere of college activities untouched, he approaches the ideal in student life. Probably the most far-reaching monument he leaves is a system of voluntary Student Bible Study that touches with its influence the core of things Carolina.

"Shep" is a peculiar combination of laziness and enthusiasm; of inertia and energy; of sense and nonsense. He seldom huys books, because he invariably loses them. Math I and Physics I both wasted three years of his time. His great passion is Dramatics. Actor, manager, chairman of Junior and Senior stunts, are all one to him. But what it took to put through the most successful financial season the Dramatic Club ever experienced, Shep had it. Still, whether he acts or manages, he always acts. "E. T." came to us from the Class of 1914. He is always busy and studies hard. His courses range all the way from Billy's Pedagogy to Dey's French. Campbell has taken every inviting course in college and has succeeded in making a hard course out of every one on account of his ernestness. He is finishing his work in English this year. If dogged tenacity of purpose will aid in making a success, he will surely make good. We are glad that he decided to finish with us rather than with 1914. This shows that he certainly has good judgment.

When this Mellin's Food specimen entered college, he was a 185 pound "Billy Bounce" and earned the nickname "Fats." Now he is more respectably known as Austin, since he weighs only 160 pounds. He says hard work did it, but the consensus of opinion is that it wasn't work that accomplished such a tremendous task. Austin, however, is a good worker, has a tendency for business and philosophy (?), a jovial disposition, a wounded heart, a Chemistry II book, and several other phenomena. Just recently he has taken an amazing interest in Geology. Incidentally he graduated after the fall exams, so that he might get out into the world and make a home for—himself, of course. And he is most apt to succeed.

George Willard has the distinction of having risen from the freshest Freshman to the finest Senior. Everybody admires "Crip" for having overcome his rheumatism by the most remarkable optimism. He hobbled on crutches for two years and now strides on fame. Parliamentary law and editorials, social service and Y. M. C. A. book exchanges are mere routines to him, while oratory is a pastime. Bascom is one of the hardest, most consistent workers we have. He strictly minds his own business and minds it well. He is liked by everybody and can be depended on to do his duty and a little more. Bascom could be a good athlete if he could spare more time from his work; but even with so much on his shoulders, he has been one of the best of class athletes. "Pling," the biggest man at Carolina for years, is the all-'round athlete, literary light, guide and mentor, debating society troubler, and boarding house manager. Discussion of the man adequately, limitations of time, space, and patience prevent, but if statistics tell the tale, he is '15's premier cosmopolite and versatile genius, which quality consists in a great capacity for doing work. After three and a half years of college conquest, he was downed by a blind boy, Cupid. With our benediction, friends, let us leave him to his woe.

"Dee" is the nickname of a real good fellow. Just to show what a good student he has been he gets an A.B. and takes a full year of Medicine all in four years. Of course he had trouble in passing John Booker's English I, but that is a secret. "Dee" has tried his hand at everything and has done everything that he has tried. What time he is not on class he may be found in either Davie Hall or in the Chemistry Building. He once belonged to Fitzgerald's "Woman Hatters" Association," but he is no longer worthy of memship in any such organization.

Way back in the dark ages Bruce entered the Class of '13. But he dropped out two years and joined us, in fact and in spirit, during our Junior year. Since then he has been an active, hustling, and prominent member of the class, because he is interested in everything that is for the good of the college. Gunter is one of the moving spirits in debating eireles. In his Freshman and Sophomore years he made the inter-society debates, and has been debating ever since. Besides, Bruce is a good business man, and most apt to succeed in life.

GRAHAM HARDEN Burlington, N. C.

Graham is our most beautiful blonde, much addicted to work. He is one of the few who take First Year Medicine and at the same time try graduating for a pastime. He used to buy immense numbers of wonderful jewerby creations, only to lose them at the next dances. Lived the social life for a while and then took up Medicine. Since then neither he nor Medicine has rested. Graham is the kind of fellow who has the confidence of everybody, and this will without doubt contribute materially to his success later as a physician.

Harding came to us as fresh from the hills as ever we had one, but college will do wonders for a man. He has plenty of sense, ean speak well if necessity demands, and can appreciate a good joke to the fullest extent. He worked hard under Dr. "Pat." and secured a job in Physics Laboratory, which he has held with credit. Harding is a bright fellow, a hard, earnest worker, and will be heard from shortly in the workl.

Don came to us from Williams College, appearing, contrary to all University traditions, in white flannel trousers. A little later he won fame as the Swedish servant girl in that memorable dramatic production, "What Happened to Jones." His soft voice and winning manners render him so irresistible to the ladies that floods of tears are shed by three St. Mary's girls every day they do not have a letter from this easy-going heart smasher. A good Scrub football man, but still the personification of individuality, moving in a mysterious, sympathetic aloofness that we admire and like, yet cannot understand.

"B. B." fast came into prominence in Carolina's life as a debater. His deservedly notable talents in that line of endeavor, and his untiring interest in the affairs of the Di Society, have been of great benefit to this society. "B. B.'s" talents, however, are not limited to a display of forensic eloquence, as is convinced by his election to the Senior Stunt Committee. Having by the gift of Providence a good mind, he is also endowed with that other requisite element for success—energy.

First Billy was a typical Freshman; then he became a football player, and now he is one of the best ends in Carolina history. He absolutely tyramized his Virginia opponents in 1913, and was picked by Lambeth for All-Southern end (see Spaulding's Guide). Work tried to keep him from playing this year, but work could not kill the desire to fight Virginia once more. Bill played the Thanksgiving game again and, of course, could not help starring. A wonderful football player, one of our chief ladiesmen, and a fine fellow all the way.

"Louie" came all the way from Knoxville, Tenn., to attend the University. The long journey seemed to have tired him out for a time; consequently he spent his first two years resting. In his Junior year he woke up and passed off an accumulated wealth of fives and sixes; now in his Senior year he has blossomed out into the Phi Beta Kappa class. Lonic connered three ones in the Fall exams and still has blood in his eye. He has made some lasting friends in college, and if one ever really gets a chance to know him, there's none better.

"Keese," the politest man in his class, never yet has offended anybody intentionally, nor has he forgotten his patron saint, Chesterfield. Ed was unfortunately, indirectly, noncommittally, unmaliciously on the eampus one hazing night and spent the next year at Washington and Lee. But we were mighty glad to get him back again, and he has made a record for himself as our best type of "a gentleman and a scholar."

"W. D." is the supreme exponent of individnalism and iconoclasm in the Senior Class. He is one of those rare geniuses who can disagree with you agreeably; consequently, the more you know him the better you like him. Doub entered our class in his Junior year after two years at Davidson. He was Vice-President of his class the first year he was in college, and an editor of Quips and Cranks, the college annual, in his Sophomore year. He was slated for Editor-in-chief, but he left Davidson to come to us. He came here because he wished to specialize in languages. Incidentally he is one of the best students of languages the Hill has had for some time.

"Killie," "Cizzors," "Eggs," is an impossibility. Poet and chemist, and the best of both or either in the class, he harmonized the unharmonizable by writing a poem on "The Bunsen Burner." But still no class meeting, smoker, publication board meeting, or Chemistry Hall matinee is complete without him. Impetuous, hard working, and always symmathetic, "Eggs" has ricocheted through college, getting hard knocks at every turn, but at last he has come out the sume old "Killie" who entered. The youngest, happiest, and most irrepressible boy in the class.

Wade is not a dictagraph, but he is a speaking business machine. He makes good marks, money, and speeches. He can run a boarding house, pressing club, or the Phi Society with perfect case. And if you don't believe that he can speak, ask "Red" Martin. Wade is a smiling good fellow with a level head and plenty of sense.

A philosophic talking machine, a champion of "Horace" and the Victola, a worker, and a Starr man. Gabe lives at the rectory and so has not cultivated many college intimacies. But he is always ready with a smile and a line, half good fellowship and half philosophic Horarian echo. We are persuaded that when the last great day cometh and Gabriel doth blow his horn, 'twill be a graphaphone horn and the issuing words will be "Truth, Goodness, and Beauty." By mixing thought with industry Lambert is sure to come out on top.

Generally known as "Boss" or "Post Office" Lambert instead of Henry Diopysus. He sees fun in everything and always wears a smile. He says the Post Office doesn't furnish ample opportunity to dispose of his surplus energy; therefore, he takes an A.M. this year while the rest of us are doing well to get an A.B. Judging from his work in the classroom and in the Post Office, we expect him to make a success.

"Tad" is a genius at being a sober-sided good fellow. Edmund Jones, Junior, stepped into basehall politics, but net Murphy on the "Hill" and happily enough stepped out of politics none the less popular and greatly relieved. "Tad" specializes in the gym, engineering, and society, and has made a hit in every one. One of our A-1 fellows.

L. W. Law.

"Kitty," "Chief," and the "Politician"—three in one. It took this Wadesboro lad three years to find his calling, but when he did, he set this old campus on fire. Politics is his middle name, and you may bet your last Lincoln penny on "Kitty" every time. Besides being Chief Marshal, he managed the basebalt team, studied law, made the All Class football team, and won fame in college politics. Withal he has a good head and heart, although the latter is comparatively weak during the dances. Deserves his popularity with both sexes.

RACHEL LYNCH Chapel Hill, N. C.

After graduating at the Normal, Miss Lynch happily joined our class. Intellectually we doubt not that she is a suffragette, although from all appearance she is too modest to assert her opinion on that particular subject. But she, together desirable element to our class, although she hasn't entered into politics. We feel fortunate in having such a feature to dear old 1915.

"Reggy" is one of the few true-blue, dyed-inwool ladiesmen. He takes as naturally to the ladies as a duck to water. And the happy side of the situation is that the ladies enjoy "Reggy" as much as "Reggy" enjoys the ladies. He left us for a year and tried Columbia, but returned to graduate along with his class. He lives in New York State, but even his worst enemy, if it were possible for him to have an enemy, would not hold this against him. Here is the jolly good fellow who is glad to be alive. And you ought to hear him tickle the ivories.

This lover of poetry made a brilliant start in his college earcer by having English I under his mutual admirer Eddie Mims. But the departure of this literary genius evidently killed the flickering flame embedded in this young sou because he has deserted poetry for more serious philosophical work. Almost any time 'Radish' may be found sitting, philosophising. The only regret we have is that he doesn't give the world the benefit of his deep cogitations. The time he could spare from his work he has put into playing class football and baseball, writing his philosophical works, and doing the social act. One of the very best eggs which we have.

"Red"—largely hair and air; not, however, that the hair is not worthy of the loveliest of Titian's beauties, nor that the air ever fails to be laden with worth-while words. Martin is his own thinker, and a mighty expresser of those thoughts. In his atmosphere, he divides his attention between the roles of a demi-god and demagogue, interesting himself on the gridinon of intellect, in mind athletics, undemocratics, and Demosthemetics. His heart and legs are Maggie Zeen's and he renders good service in chasing down and turning out articles of vim and moment.

Fred should have been born with a banjo in his hand for he has that "ourestlessness" in his toos which makes the ideal clog dancer. With his good nature Fred goes his quiet way at Carolina, coming to the front here in tennis, there in class baseball, but never obtrusive in anything. He is typical of the quiet man who is all there, steady through thick and thin—the man who comes in at the finish not first, but firm and secure on the college footing he has formed for himself.

One of the steadiest men in the class. Whenever you want anything done go to "Meb." He showed up early as an atblete, but his upper-class years have been devoted more to business and literary endeavors than to atbletics. At the end of his Junior year, "Bit" was elected to the most diffcult and responsible position of Editor-in-chief of YacKETY YACK; he was also chosen manager of the Varsity basketball team. In both capacities he has "batted a thousand." With his quiet, confident smile, "Meb" is one of the most efficient workers and "best eggs" in innetcen-fifteen.

A walking encyclopedia with a red binding — Mary Scales Miller. She is always ready with authentic facts when the instructor is in doubt. Attempted twenty hours in her Senior year notwithstanding her intense interest in athleties during the football season. She is so slight of stature that she can slip about without a sound. And that is something which is not said often these days. Representative of the type of "that oldfashioned girl," she possesses a unique combination, modesty and brilliancy.

"Nancy," according to general opinion, is a mighty good man, and general opinion agrees with the opinion of his class associates. A class football player of 1915 who should have been on the Varsity field, he made the All-Class team the last two years. The Varsity captured him in baseball, however, and for the last two years his bat has been the terror of opposing pitchers. A good all-around man who rooms with Fitzgerald, both of whom are madly devoted, each to his own fair one.

Newsom is the peer of Pettigrew and by further analogy the future godfather of dormitories. Few men live to preside over Phi Beta Kappa with a flat ninety-seven and a half, but besides affecting this with easy grace, Newson has lived into the very heart of life at U. N. C. Though his chief concern is well-rounded, well-grounded scholarship, he has found time for friends and interests other than his books. Preeminently the scholar of his college generation, he is, withal, so unassuming that he is as widely liked as he is known.

"B. Oceasionally he muses desperately for a second, but that is all. A splendid humor, plenty of frivolity, a good head, and a sympathy for his friends (everybody), make "Bifty" the best egg in college, and an all-round man we are proud of.

"Jimmy" came to us from Oak Ridge Institute some four years ago. His diminitive size, added to the fact that he wore knickerbockers at that time, made many a Senior stop and begin to philosophize upon what a puerile institution the University had become. Although Jimmy has reached the dignity of a Senior, he is still small, but just as boyal as the biggest of us both to Carolina and to the "Old Class." We feel sure that with his sunny disposition and capacity for work he will make good in the world.

"Wam," as he is called by his intimates, accused by Sophomores of having an asinine grin, smiled blandly on until he outlived his Freshman epithet. Looking very dignified, he is at all times ready for a lark. Doesn't study too much, but has been recognized for his literary merit. "Pat" is a queer combination which one seldom meets. He is an inveterate Durhamite and yet he has credit for only one five, and that on Greek. Ilis chief weaknesses are for "Pat's" Physics and Charlie Lee's dope. It is reported that once he spent a solid week on the "Hill," but the report has failed of confirmation. Sahag, the latter half of our famous "Sohrab and Rustum" duet, is the most loyal member the class possesses, in spite of the fact that he has gone into the Mcdical Department. He has never missed a class banquet and only one or two class smokers. He was, moreover, the first Senior to wear'a white hat with a red band; he is always in for anything classy. Old "Rustum" is really an artist of ability, and he has earned his way through college by the aid of the brush and crayons. And if you ever asked, Leon is some artist with the ladies.

SAMUEL FLOYD SCOTT Mebane, N. C.

Floyd is too seclusive and modest to have acquired a nickname. He could be a Freshman without being fresh, and a Senior without trying to let everybody know it. If you want him, you'll find him in his regular haunts—the Old West Building or Davie Hall. Floyd has been troubled this year with a very bad case of love at first sight. We prescribe matrimonial treatment and hope for a speedy recovery. Even with this burden, he has not lost all of his redeeming features, because he can still impress "Froggie" and "Charlie" Mangum as a student of unusual ability.

Sisk is one of our good men—naturally good and square. He is another man who has come to us after a leave of absence for two years. Chaude is a loyal son of Carolina in doctrine and in practice. He is always boosting everything worth while, and he is always busy at something which is for the good of the University. "Clip" is one of those strong whole-souled men who believes in regular routine and hard work. He is one of the few who is able to take a full year of Medicine and graduate at the same time. But going from the sublime to the ridiculous, "Clip" passes anything from Histology to Geology because he has the determination that overcomes all. When not at work, he may be found chatting with his friends or running on the track, where he excels, as is the case in his mental endeavors. One of the strongest and best all-'round men to be found in the class.

WILLIAM RANEY STANFORD Teer, N. C.

Age 22 Height 5 feet 10 inches Weight 160

Alamance County Club; Di Society; Zoology Club; Assistant in Zoology. L. W. undecided.

No one ever thinks of calling Stanford by a niekname. He is a serious, carnest, quiet sort of fellow who came to college to study, and has been doing that one thing ever since. He got a boot on "Froggie" by the only method under heaven—work. Do not suffer under the delusion, however, that Stanford is merely a work machine. He is extremely human and in a quiet, unoffensive way is a punster of no mean ability. He and Scott are inseparable studying, eating, cooming, and playing together.

ALMA IRENE STONE Chapel Hill, N. C.

Student Meredith College, Raleigh, N. C.

She joined us in our Senior year, coming to us from a school in the Capital City and, by the way, she is a capital student, the most studious member of the Co-ed trio. Morning, afternoon, and night she works and thinks not "'tis a dull and endless strife." From her name one would think that she was predestined to be a geologist. Although not this, she is the embodiment of all that her name implies—solidity and firmness; wherever she is placed, her assistance will be lasting.

JOHN MOORIIAJ TAMRAZ Tabriz, Persia

Age 26 Height 5 feet 10 5 inches Weight 150 Phi Society; Medical Society, L. W. Medicine.

We wish to explain his home town as written above, for he is not a foreigner but one of us, and we are proud to claim him as such. The graces of a prince, the soul of an artist, and the unassuming worth of a true gentleman have endcared him to us all. Whenever he can be prevailed upon to loosen up, he entertains his hearers with a delightful voice, and as for his painting, the world will shortly hail him as a genius. For Carolina students of this generation, he is the king of Persia—and right worthy of being king or any other high muck-a-muck they have.

GEORGE FREDERIC TAYLOR Norwood, N. C.

Age 27 Height 6 feet Weight 165

Student Trinity College; Student Louisiana State University; Compass Club; Buncombe County Club,

George knew that Carolina is the place and 1915 the time to take an A.B. Ile flirted with Trinity for three years, but "came across" to us at the last moment. Not many of us know him; he has touched only lightly the campus activities. But he has hit Physics hard, chewed up three of "Pat's" courses and he really seemed to like the taste. We wish him well in his pursuit of Science.

WILLIAM RAYMOND TAYLOR Louisburg, N. C.

Age 19 Height 6 feet 1.5 inches Weight 160

Pres. Franklin County Club; Philological Club; Philosophy Club; Le Cercle Francais; Deutsche Verein, Assistant in Library (3,4); Phi Society; North Carolina Club; Sec. Phi Beta Kappa.

Raymond is one of those retiring scholastic English hernits. He has a passive interest in all college activities, but lives and has his being only in the realm of the intellectual. He has a mania for "blinding" the "profs.," and this mania, successfully mastered, has ranked him next to Newsom in scholarship. After a fashion Raymond is congenial, but he doesn't know how to get off that everlasting dignity. If he ever gets to know human nature, he is most certain to succeed as a teacher, for he knows subject matter.

FRANK LAFAYETTE THIGPEN Tarboro, N. C.

Age 20 He

Height 6 feet 1 inch Weight 160

Y. M. C. A.; Tennis Association; Twin County Club; Warrenton High School Club; Medical Society. L. W. Medicine.

Frank comes to us from Pine Tops via Warrenton High School. Being a good fellow and a hard student, he is an excellent recommendation for both places. He doesn't have much to say until called upon, but has never failed yet to deliver the goods. His sound mind and studious habits promise success for him in his life work.

HARRY GORDON TIIIGPEN Tarboro, N. C.

Age 23 Height 5 feet 9 inches Weight 143

Warrenton High School Club; Trinity Club; Medical Society; Tennis Association; Twin County Club. L. W. Medicine.

Harry is another product from the Tops, via Warrenton High School and Trinity. He is rather glib with his jokes and enjoys them heartily. His very inquisitive mind, which is often expressed, bids fair for his being one of the world's researchists.

WILLIAM CAPEHART WALKE Avoca, N. C.

Age 20 Height 5 feet 9.5 inches Weight 170

Class Tennis (2,3,4); German Club; A. I. E. E.; Kappa Alpha. L. W. Engineering.

"Walk in Lowenburg shoes," says "Tubby," "they will last a life time." Rather portly and very affable is this tennis shark and engineer. We have missed his company in his Seuior year, because with Bill Huske he lives and moves and has his being. We think it is very selfish of Bill to treat the rest of us that way, because we are all foud of "Tubby" and would like to see more of him. He has developed into a student in his last year, and Physics and Daggett are the only words known to our future electrical engineer.

ALBERT THOMAS WEATHERLY Gorman, N. C.

Age 22 Height 5 feet 10 inches Weight 170

Y. M. C. A.; Tennis Association; Dramatic Association: North Carolina Club; Durham County Club; Phi Society.

Tom, the pride of the Old West, had the distinction of rooming with Peel in his Junior year, and consequently acquired much of his "Bull." His line of conversation, however, is successful with the ladies; therefore, we might conclude that in refined society this indifferent youth finds due appreciation. After a calm, unbroken reign of three years, this man of few deeds but many thoughts woke up in his Senior year and played class baseball. Quiet and unobtrusive, Tom is a good egg, but hard to crack. His friends wish him much success.

WILLIE PERSON MANGUM WEEKS Washington, D. C.

Age 20 Height 6 feet

Weight 145

Di Society; Y. M. C. A.; Tennis Association; Class Pin Committee; Associato Editor Yackery Yack (4); Pres. Dramatic Association (3); Dramatic Chb (23,4); German Club; Satyr; Phi Beta Kappa; Omega Delta; Sigma Upsilon; Osiris; Sigma Chi.

"Willie P." is without question the most dignified man in the Senior Class. This dignity is natural, but it has been well cultivated through dramatic art, since here is our premier actor. Combining dramatics with a knowledge of everything worth while, Mangum has become a most refined scholar and an interesting and entertaining companion. He shares with "Lucy" Harris the most attractive room in college, and a man's room is always characteristic of the man. This high type of scholar has added much poise to the Senior Class.

CLIFTON FOREST WEST Dover, N. C.

Age 23

Height 5 feet 5 inches Weight 140

Phi Society; Tennis Association; Medical Society; Secretary and Treasurer of Medical Class (4). L. W. Medicine.

Clifton began making good marks when he migrated from Dover four years ago, and he has kept it up ever since. He is a hard, conscientious worker and has done his full duty here. We are sure that he will continue to be the same good fellow after he leaves college.

ZACK LANIER WHITAKER Oak Ridge, N. C.

Age 21 Height 5 feet 5 inches Weight 130

Di Society; Class Baschall (1.2.3); Mgr. Class Baschall (2); Class Football (3.4); All-Class Football (4); Capt. Class Baschall (3); Assichte Editor YACRETY YACR (5); Ball Manuser (3); Assic, Mgr. Varsity Track (3); Mgr. Varsity Track (4); Athletic Council; Kappa Sigma. L. W. Law.

Zack was called Bascom half of the time until his twin brother left us two years ago. Now everybody knows him by his right name as defensive fiend at left end on the championship Senior team. As manager of the Varsity track team we wish him as much success as his cousin "Pap" had last year. One of the steady men of the class, who by his persevering fight is bound to make good.

PAUL LINWOOD WHITE Scotland Neck, N. C.

Age 21

Height 5 feet 10 inches

Halifax County Club; North Carolina Club; Tennis Association; Phi Society. L. W. Teaching.

Paul knows everything, for he has spent four years in the Library and has read every classic, together with all the standard novels and books of fiction. This seclusion, however, has not isolated him from his companions, for he possesses a good nature. He is indebted for his walk to some dignified gentleman who, as we have never seen him, is probably receiving his just reward.

JAMES VIVIAN WHITFIELD Wallace, N. C.

Age 21 Height 6 feet Weight 155

Phi Society; Dramatic Club (1,2,3); Satyrs; Y. M. C. A.; Tennis Association; Asst. Bus Mgr. Magazine (3); Manager (4).

"Whit" believes in the abundant life, mixes dignity and oratory with dramatics and managing the Magazine. He took the Magazine in a bad financial year and in spite of the hard luck tales of war by advertisers "J. V." has come out better than any manager of the last few years. While at his dearly beloved Horner Military School this soldier of fortune acquired a formality and dignity which he has not yet lost.

JOHN ALLEN WILKINS Draughan, N. C.

Age 21 Height 5 feet 6.5 inches Weight 160

Phi Society; Y. M. C. A.; Class Football Team (3,4); All-Class Football (4).

"Johnnie," by hard work on the football field since his Sophomore year, has come into the limelight in his Senior year by playing a great game for the Championship Class team and consequently by making the All-Class team. But the best thing about Johnnie is his personality. Always in best of humor, smiling, talking, more often laughing, he breezes over the campus and puts everybody who comes in contact with him into a good humor. He comes in mighty handy over in the Carr Barn, because if anybody needs Johnnie it is the sikk at heart—the kind who has the "I didn't hear from her" look. Would that we had more like him!

CLAUDE BERNARD WOLTZ Dobson, N. C.

Age 24 Height 5 feet 11 inches Weight 170

Y. M. C. A.; Press Association (2); Surry County Club; North Carolina Club; Class Baseball (3); Class Football (3,4); High School Debating Committee (4); Philosophy Club; Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society; Di Society.

Claude was handed down to us from '13, and while out of college was somewhat of a pedagogue. He made the class football and baseball teams, besides being something of a gymnast. He is one of Horace's admirers, consequently spends much of his time in front of the postoffice smoking eigars and discussing Philosophy. It was rumored that he was eaught studying Physics V, but no conclusive evidence has been secured in order to back up that statement.

PIIILIP WOOLCOTT Raleigh, N. C.

Age 21 Height 5 feet 10 ioches Weight 137

Phi Society; Wake County Club; Mgr. Class Track (1); Class Football (1,23,4); Captain (3,4); All-Class Team (3,4); Soph-Junion Debuter (3), Press (Dass (2); Studien); Asst. Bus, Mgr. Magazine (3); Associate Editor YacKary YacK (3); Varsity Track Team (1,23,4); Contain (4); Wearer N. C.; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (3,4); Class Historian (3); Commencement Marshal; State High School Debating Union; German Club; Golden Fleece; Delta Kappa Epsilon.

"Phil" was the first of '15's star men to attain to campus prominence. In his Freshman year he established an enviable record in track athletics, culminating in his election to the captaincy of the track team. A most popular Sophomore President, he has never lost in his later years his popularity nor that rare faculty of always possessing "the common touch." Phil: dehater, star trackman, student. With such achievements the ordinary man would be contented, but Phil had to get that most valued of Senior superlatives, "The best-looking man in the class."

Senior Law Class

MARGARET KOLLOCK BERRY Chapel Hill, N. C.

Age 22 Height 5 feet 3 inches Weight 110

A.B. 1913; Vice-President of Law Class, Spring Term, 1915.

A rare combination of high aspirations, keen intellect, and "just girl." A suffragette, of course, and proves her right to the ballot by standing among the first in the class. But she is too full of the joy of living to sacrifice her girlhood to her theories. She excels in arguing a case, but is more at home in a drawingroom. We predict that her ready smile will captivate one as well as twelve men.

JOHN SCOTT CANSLER Charlotte, N. C.

Age 22 Height 5 feet 10 inches Weight 130

Di Society; German Club; President Pan-Hellenic Council; President German Club; Coop; Amphoterothen; Golden Fleece; Gimghoul; Phi Beta Kappa; Beta Theta Pi.

Naturally versatile, but above all else a thinker, John struck the law with such concentrated force that "Trusts" shivered to their deepest roots, and Statutes blushingly betrayed the secret of their exact meaning. His quick perception and sound judgment are free from any scintilla of lazy stubbornness. Conservative in his undertakings, he is untiring in his achievements. And with all his hard work, ever the gracious spirit that translates labor into a laugh. We count on him to show us a real lawyer.

Senior Law Class

THOMAS ETHERIDGE GILMAN Jacksonville, N. C.

Age 21 Height 5 feet 10 inches Weight 160

Class Football, 11; Scrub Football, '12; Sub-Varsity, '15; Class Baseball, '13 and '14; Assistant Manager Track Team, '14; Philanthropic Society; German Club; Phi Delta Theta.

Tom is one of the best eggs of the class. He goes to Durham if he thinks anything is going to happen that needs his attention, and studies occasionally at spare times. He loves the ladies and is one of the Law Class representatives on the social side of college life. Took the Supreme Court by storm last August and captured his license, and is now a practicing attorney and counselor at law in Chapel Hill. He never fails to greet you with a smile, which has made every member of the class his friend. He is alert, energetic, a Democrat, a good mixer, a good student, and is going to make as good a havyer, if he keeps on the job. Everybody likes "Tom."

AUGUSTUS WASHINGTON GRAHAM, JR. Oxford, N. C.

Age 23 Height 6 feet 14 inch Weight 140 A.B., U. of N. C., 1912; Phi Beta Kappa; Delta Kappa Epsilon.

A man at work and a boy at play. Thorough, careful, and exact in everything. Modest with his abundant knowledge, and always glad to help a less fortunate classmate. Some call him dignified, and he does bear himself as a judge. Gus is our most complete graduate, and to him work comes as a pleasure. He loves the study of law and will, we all believe, soon become not only a prominent practitioner but also an authority on the rights of a "feme covert."

Senior Law Class

LESLIE EDWARD JONES Swan Quarter, N. C.

Age 28 Height 5 feet 7 inches Weight 155

Here is one of the really strong men of the class. He finished his course in three and one-half years, got his license, and is now back at his home practicing his profession. He presided over the destiny of his class the first year of its existence on the Hill. The eall of the Law was imperative to him, and he has a doggedness of determination that it takes to make a great havyer. He is just a little modest about it, but nevertheless, he loves the hadies, and it is strongly believed that he will be reekoning with the rights of a married woman within a short time.

MAJOR THOMAS SMITH Reidsville, N. C.

Age 31 Height 5 feet 10 inches Weight 140 Di Society.

He may be "blinded" every now and then but never twice on the same point. "Empty" is earnest, diligent, and thorough in everything. Modest and unassuming, yet forceful and sure when he speaks, Major is such an untiring worker that he is bound to succeed as a lawyer.

Age 23

Senior Law Class

MATTHEW A. STROUP Cherryville, N. C.

Height 6 feet Weight 175

Senior Law Class Representative on the Greater Council; Member of Glee Club (1,4); Member of Band (1); Y. M. C. A.; Historical Society; Di Society; Gaston County Club.

"Bull" is all right. He is everybody's friend. and is possessed with that good, hard common sense that will make him a force to be reckoned with in the court room. -When he gets animated, you had better look out, for even if his logic fails him, he will sweep all before him by the sheer force of his oratory. His favorite amusement is singing, and he takes life philosophically. His room is the best place to go if you have the blues, and his friendship is as warm and real as the summer sun. If he doesn't meet with success in life, it will not be for the lack of merit.

JOSEPH MANSON TURBYFILL Waynesville, N. C. Height 6 feet

A.B., Washington and Lee University; Varsity Baseball Team, Washington and Lee (1,2,3,4); President of Senior Law Class; passed Supreme Court Examinations, February, 1915

Joe is a left hand leaguer. He came to us from Washington and Lee, where his wiry wing and slugging propensities won him no mean fame. On class his batting average is good, for while he doesn't get many home runs, he nearly always makes a clean hit. But Joe is born for a politieian. He doesn't know it either, and is just the kind of fellow that Tammany will pick out to put to the front, and then find out that "Turby" is his own boss. He likes the law, is fond of tennis and loves the ladies; and if his popularity among his classmates is any evidence, he will no doubt take Mrs. Turbyfill to live in the executive mansion. (Boys, she is some good looking Nebraskan.)

Age 22

Senior Law Class

SEYMOUR WEBSTER WHITING Raleigh, N. C.

Height 6 feet Weight 150

A.B., 1914; Varsity Track Team; Phi Beta Kappa; Amphoterothen; Golden Fleece; Sigma Upsilon; Sigma Chi.

Producing a YACKETY YACK, winning a Phi Beta Kappa key and a track "N. C.," and taking part in just about every movement and activity on the campus, all while engaged in putting six years of A.B. and LL.B. work into five years of experience—these are some of the things with which "Ribbit" has occupied his time here. Incidentally, he has made no one of them the big show; but combining all, has still had leisure to enjoy himself, and time to make many friends. No mere efficient mechanism here, but a broad, congenial spirit.

WILSON WILLIAM ALLEN Hendersonville, N. C.

Age 23 Height 5 feet 11 inches Weight 150

Assistant in Laboratory; President William Simpson Pharmaceutical Society; Permanent Secretary of Class.

"Sid," "Bill," "Doe," "Fessor,"—he answers to almost any name. He is a good man through and through, friendly yet not too forward, conscientious yet not pious, a good egg yet not a rounder. Possessed of all this, he is a friend to every acquaintance and is highly respected by the boys in his laboratory. He passed the Board with ease and returned to graduate. As a reward of true merit, he was given an assistant's place in the Pharmacy Laboratory. Through him as permanent secretary we expect to keep in touch with ease hother.

FORNEY JACKSON ANDREWS Durham, N. C.

Age 24 Height 5 feet 8 inches Weight 144

Student Columbia University 1913-14; William Simpson Pharmaceutical Society; Journal Club; Durham County Club; Kappa Psi, Columbia University.

A good druggist on account of his wide experience. He came to us from Columbia where he must have studied hard, because there is nothing lacking in his preparation. "F. J." is something of an orator as has been demonstrated before the Pharmaceutical Society. Never carrying on foolishness and seldom smiling, he is always serious, and on the job.

JUNIUS FRANKLIN ANDREWS Durham, N. C.

Age 22 Height 5 feet 7 inches Weight, 128

Student Columbia University, 1913-14; William Simpson Pharmaceutical Society; Publicity Committee Durham County Club.

"Juny," as he is usually called, is indigenous to North Carolina, but was transplanted and cultivated in New York. He came to us in the fall of '14, bubbling over with pep and Yankee pharmacy. He talked so much that at first we hardly knew how to understand him. Since seeing more of him, however, we have learned to tolerate his childish prattle, and find him a pleasant companion and a good fellow at heart. If he doesn't exhaust all of his steam he will surely accomplish something in the world of science.

Senior Pharmacy Class

RICHARD HOMER ANDREWS Chapel Hill, N. C.

Age 21 Height 5 feet 8 inches Weight 146

Y. M. C. A.; Vice-President of Class (3); Vice-President Pharmaceutical Society; Secretary Orange County Club; Assistant in Pharmacy Laboratory.

Homer lives in town, but spends most of his time around the Pharmacy and Chemistry buildings. He takes great pride in his Pharmacy Laboratory. Since he is a great believer in public sanitation, we think he will lend his talent and ability in the interest of public health. Homer is generous to a fault. If he were only able, he would endow the Pharmacy Department. Although of a studious disposition, he is very fond of "gasing" and planning. If his plans do not "gang aft a-gley," he will attain success with his Ph.G. and P.D. degrees.

ARTHUR LEVI FISHEL Winston-Salem, N. C.

Age 21 Height 5 feet 11 inches Weight 152

Secretary of William Simpson Pharmaceutical Society.

"Fish," but not by any means a sardine. A man who manufactures his own amusement, learns his own lessons, and is always present when there is any work to do. We all vote him the most thorough student in his class, and think him eligible for Phi Beta Kappa, if keys were given to professional students. For him we predict a successful future because he minds his own business and performs every task.

Senior Pharmacy Class

JOHN SUGG HARPER Snow Hill, N. C.

Age 21 Height 5 feet 8 inches Weight 140

Pharmaceutical Society; President Greene County Club.

"Duck" is the pet term applied to John because of his facial similarity to the fowl. "Duck" is one of the hottest sports in college and fully helieves in joy-riding to Durham and to other points of interest. We think he has reformed somewhat, as he says he has given up the follies of youth and has shrouded himself in studious seelusion. He is neat, quick, and precise in his laboratory work, and withal is a good fellow with bright possibilities ahead of him.

JOHN LELAND HENDERSON Hickory, N. C.

Age 22 Height 5 feet 9 inches Weight 156

Y. M. C. A.: Journal Club; Cataseba-Burke County Club; Square and Compass Club; Vice-President Cluss 1912-13; Septemary Class (h); Vice-President Pharmaceutical Society (1); Treasurer Pharmaceutical Society (3); Band (1,3); Orchestra (1); Glee Club (1,3); Manager Band Association (3); German Club; Pi Kappa Phi.

"Hendy," as he is popularly called, is a man of many parts, who has thoroughly demonstrated his versatile character by his many achievements in scholarship and campus activities. In June, 1913, he led the State Board. This past year, as manager of the Band Association, he developed the best band the college has ever had. John attends Sunday school and church regularly, supports every good movement in college, has been a member of the Glee Club for two years, loves the ladies, is declared by all who know him to be a good egg and a good man. By his ability and energy, he may be counted upon to make a success in his chosen profession.

SUMMEY BYRD HIGGINS Leicester, N. C.

Age 21 Height 5 feet 11 inches Weight 170

Ph.G., 1914; Scrub Football Team; Pharmaceutical Society; Treasurer Class (3).

"Hig" has for the past three years demonstrated his mettle on the football field. He is of that type of man who works consistently in athletics and usually works equally as well in his studies. He may be found at any time from seven a. m. until six p. m. laboring either on the football field or in the Chemical Laboratory. One never sees him loafing downtown at night; therefore, we suppose he is still working in his room. Since he has always been a hard working student, we predict and wish for him a prosperous future.

THOMAS RICHARD KOONCE Chadbourn, N. C.

Age 21

Height 5 feet 11 inches Weight 165

Pharmaceutical Society; President Columbus County Club.

"Kooney," one of the prodigals who has returned to complete his education. Quiet, handsome, and bright, he has a mind of his own and a head full of sensible opinions on any subject. His hobby is Chemistry and Sunday walks to Carrboro. No doubt his thoughts of the fair sex take a considerable portion of his time, but by rooming with Fishel he will absorb enough of Remington's Doctrine to pass the State Board.

EDWARD VERNON KYSER Rocky Mount, N. C.

Age 20 Height 6 feet 1 inch Weight 155 Pharmaceutical Society.

We seldom see Kyser around the Pharmacy Building, but he can always be found downtown holding an audience spellbound with his thrilling stories of his trips from Rocky Mount to Wilson. To a stranger he appears very dignified and distant, but after you know him you can't help but like and admire his qualities. He has inherited from the original "E. V." a talent for pharmacy, but his highest ambition is to become an M.D. If there is anything in a name, we predict for him a brilliant future in the science of medicine.

ROGER ATKINSON McDUFFIE Greensboro, N. C.

Age 21 Height 5 fect 10 inches Weight 155

Y. M. C. A.; Di Society; Dramatic Association; German Club; President Senior Pharmaceutical Class; Vice-President Class, 1913-41; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (3); Sudent Council (3); Greater Council (3); President Pharmaceutieal Society; Chairman Class Athletic Committee (3); Socretary and Treasurer Guilford County Club (2,3); Brotherhood of St. Andrew; Varsity Relay Team (1); Class Track Team (1,2).

"Mac" or "Tuff," but not so tough as his name sounds. The best all-'round man in the department. He not only ranked among the best who passed the State Board, but around the campus he is a live wire of good fellowship. He has won recognition on the track and has shown his true quality in Y. M. C. A. activities. President of his class and an influential person in the Pharmaey Department. He is its representative on the Council and the man who can get by with anything from Pharmacy Lab. to teaching Bible Class. Everybody's friend and confidant.

FRED MARION PATTERSON Concord, N. C.

Age 21 Height 5 feet 8 inches Weight 165

Vice-President Senior Pharmaceutical Class; Greater Council; Pharmaceutical Society; President Trinity Club; Class Basketball; Captain Junior Basketball Team; Class Football; Varsity Baseball; German Club; Kappa Sigma.

"Pat" is one of the athletic druggists, and the reports you hear of him are from the athletic field, where he holds down the initial bag in baseball. On account of his good looks and pleasant manner he is popular with the ladies and cuts a figure at all the dances. Smiling, cheerful, and happy, he goes through life with a hearty greeting for everyone. The good wishes of the whole class follow "Pat" in his cheerful flight through life.

GEORGE CALVIN PEELER Salisbury, N. C.

Age 23

Height 5 feet 6 inches Weight 132

Pharmaceutical Society.

"Shorty," not having had any practical experience, has been greatly handicapped in his studies, but by hard work has been able to deliver the goods. He shines in Chem. III Lab., and his success with unknowns is the eause of envy of the whole class. We judge "Shorty" more by what he does than by what he says. He has given a good account of himself in baseball, and he is sure to be heard from in later years.

Senior Pharmacy Class

CARL DAVID ROSENBAUM Tarboro, N. C.

Age 22 Height 5 feet 5 inches Weight 122

Pharmaceutical Society.

"Rosie," not rosy because of his pink-blue love story, exists primarily to pass the Board and then to lead a quiet domestie life—not alone, however. He is not a brilliant student but a good plodder. Carl knows exactly when to laugh on Pharmacy II lectures. His good nature and generosity have won for him the good will of all who know him. A man with his stick-to-it-iveness is bound to win.

LOWRY REED WILSON Gastonia, N. C.

Age 22 Height 5 fect 9 inches Weight 135

Y. M. C. A.; Di Society; Gaston County Club; Pharmaceutical Society.

"Doc," as he is usually called, but we think Pickwick more appropriate, since he never misses a performance, came to us from the Class of '11, and we all welcome him. His cheerful nature and friendliness to everyone has won for him the good will of us all. Although apparently bashful on class, we have found him to be a good student and a dligent worker. His notebooks are of the best quality. Here's hoping that prosperity will never frown on our friend from Gastonia.

The Student Council

G. W. EUTSLER W. P. FULLER McD. Lewis E. L. Mackie R. A. McDuffie A. R. Newsome G. C. Singletary B. C. Trotter

THE University Council is the head of the honor system. It is the concrete expression of the moral University, the student instrument of self-government. Its members being elected of the students by the students, it is grounded upon, and gives expression to, student sentiment. The Council is not an organization of policemen, nor is it based upon a system of espionage. When any student is felt by his fellow students to be unworthy to remain in the University, the Council takes cognizance of this feeling. It examines the matter, finds the facts in the case, and decides upon the justice of that feeling. If the student is found guilty of conduct nnworthy of a University man, he is requested by the Council to leave the University. For example, if it becomes known among the students that a man has been guilty of cheating upon examination, he is disgraced in the eyes of the University community; and the students without hesitation, through their organ of expression, the Council, demand that he forthwith leave the University. The student sentiment expresses itself in this way not only in case of so flagrant a violation of the honor system as cheating, but also in cases of continued drunkenness, gambling, and such other forms of misconduct. Thus it can be seen that the student body has an effective system of self-government, that the motive power of this self-government is student sentiment, and that the organ of expression of this sentiment is the University Council.

The Greater Council

W. R. Allen, Jr. F. F. Bradshaw G. W. Eutsler B. L. Field W. P. Fuller D. Kluttz McD. Lewis G. M. Long E. L. Mackie R. A. McDuffie O. C. Nance A. R. Newsome T. M. Patterson OLIVER RAND, JR. G. C. SINGLETARY C. G. TENNENT J. C. TAYLOE T. G. TRENCHARD B. C. TROTTER

S a natural stage in the development of student government the Greater Council came into existence. The University Council confines its activities to questions relating to discipline. But there are other problems touching the general welfare that need attention. In response to this evident need the Greater Council was organized in 1912-'13. It is composed of the University Council, eight men and, in addition two representatives from each academic class, and one representative each from the Graduate, Law, Medical, and Pharmacy Schools, making in all twenty members. The Greater Council holds stated meetings at which it discusses campus problems and projects plans for constructive work. Constantly there arise questions that seem to be the direct concern of no particular elass or organization. To all such general questions the Greater Council turns its attention. It has attempted all sorts of tasks-from improving social conditions on the campus to undertaking and carrying to successful termination a State-wide interscholastic high school track meet. It has come to be an important part of the system of student government.

Young Men's Christian Association

THE spirit dominating the Young Men's Christian Association can best be shown by a brief of its activities. Its interests range from Bible study to the return of a lost knife to its owner; from a series of meetings led by John R. Mott to the exchange of second-hand books; from the study of the missionary field in Asia to the instruction of the negro boys in Chapel Hill.

Divided among three courses of study and grouped under 25 student leaders, 390 students were enrolled in Bible study. The courses given were "Men of the Old Testament," "The Manhood of the Master," and "New Studies in Acts." The leaders were prepared for their work in normal groups led by experts. The enrollment was an increase of 78 over that of last year. Bible study has become a truly vital part and factor of campus life.

In the spring three courses in Mission Study were given, namely, "The New Era in Asia," "Mexico," and "Present Forces in Negro Progress." Using the same organization and often the same enrollment as the Bible study courses, the work continued with little break.

Probably the strongest list of speakers ever here under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A. marked the past year. John R. Mott, that great ealm rock of modern Christian strength, conducted a series of meetings February 12-14. In the fall Dr. W. D. Weatherford, International Committeeman of the Y. M. C. A. and life of the Blue Ridge Conference, spoke. Others were Mr. C. G. Hounshall, of the Student Volunteer Movement; A. C. Harte, National Secretary of the Student Movement in India—and Dr. W. S. Hall, Professor of Physiology in North Western University. Dr. Hall spoke on sex hygiene.

The Book Exchange handled over 1.700 second-hand books on a 5% basis of profit between seller and buyer. This meant an appreciable saving to the student body. The growth of this department during the last two years has been phenomenal. It is hoped that out of it will develop a students' co-operative store.

The usual program of religious meetings was changed this year. Formerly there was a Tuesday night meeting, addressed by a member of the Faculty or prominent visitor, and a Thursday night prayer meeting led by a student. The past year saw a consolidation of the two forces. Students and Faculty members alternated in leading the Tuesday meetings, while the Thursday night meetings were dropped.

Two Negro Sunday Schools were managed and aided by the Association, and a night school with an enrollment of 18 maintained. The five neighborhood Sunday Schools in which students assisted or had complete charge were all maintained in an excellent manner.

Three new features have been added within the year. Groups of boys and young men in Carrboro have been organized under the Industrial Department. The younger boys of the town and Faculty have been enrolled and interested in the Boy Seout movement. A Lost and Found Bureau has been established and conducted throughout the year. This practical little service filled a real need and typifies the helpful spirit of the Y. M. C. A. at Carolina.

Literary Societies and Debating

RGANIZED in the same year that the University opened its doors to the public, the Dialectic and Philanthropic Literary Societies have a history inseparably connected with that of the University. These organizations have directed their attention mainly to the literary pursuits of training their members in the ever useful and important art of public speaking and debating. In addition to this work, however, they publish the University Magazine and (in cooperation with the Fraternities) the YACKETY YACK.

Variety and zest and life are given to the work of debating and public speaking by means of contests. Each society arranges annually a Freshman debate, to be participated in only by the members of the Freshman Class. Three times each year representatives of the societies face each other in public debate, and once each year they meet on the oratorical platform. These contests are always characterized by keen but most friendly rivalry.

Long ago the societies, as representing the University, entered the field of inter-collegiate debating. If proof were needed of the effectiveness of the work done by the societies, it could be found in the record they have made in this field of activity. Out of forty-one debates with the strongest Universities of the South and Pennsylvania of the North, thirty have been won and only eleven lost. Among the most coveted honors in the University is that of wearing the "N.C." fob, which is presented by the societies to those who represent them in inter-collegiate contests.

These societies are examples of organizations that have preserved the best traditions of the past, and have won a lasting place in the hearts of their members. Around the meetings in the old Society Halls cluster many of the most pleasant memories of the men who have gone out from their walls. The alumnus, when he returns to visit his Alma Mater, delights to go to the Di or Phi Hall, there to gaze upon the portraits of famous sons of the society, and to lose himself in retrospect.

But, although revering their past, the societies have kept abreast of the times. They have most admirably caught the present day spirit of progress. Early seizing upon the idea of extension of opportunity, they organized the High School Debating Union for the benefit of the high school students of the State. Within one year the Debating Union grew to such proportions that the aid of the University had to be invoked. This year more than one thousand high school students will engage in public debate under the auspices of the Debating Union. This movement for the encouragement of debating in the high schools has attracted notice throughout the entire country.

With a past record full of service and glory, the societies look into a future equally full of possibility and promise.

Dramatics: A Retrospect

T IS hardly necessary here to recount the history of the University Dramatic Club for the past few years. A minor activity, it entered in the fall of 1912 upon a hitherto unparalleled year of success. This year was the famous one of the production of Broadhurst's roaring faree, "What Happened to Jones." Under the able coaching of Professors McKie, Booker, and Cross, with the astute financial ability of Manager Busby, and including in its personnel such dramatic stars as Coggin, Johnson, and Weeks, the club could not have failed to win success.

The season of 1913–14 was no less auspicious. Sir Arthur Pinero's amusing English comedy, "The Magistrate," was chosen for production. Messrs. Kerr and Blaloek proved to be very valuable finds for the club. With an excellent east and under the careful managership of "Shep" Bryan, the club proved very conclusively that it was not living on the reputation of the phenomenal success of the preceding year, but really "had the goods."

During these two years the club, playing in some eighteen or more towns in the State, appeared before more than six thousand people. Dramatics had begun to assume a very prominent position among the activities of the University, besides being a means of bringing the University and its campus life into closer touch with the alumni and the people of the State.

With two years of such successes, and the product of two years' experience in dramatic training upon which to build, it is small wonder that the elub of 1914–15 has been able to surpass its predecessors both in individual acting and in cast work. The choice of the committee, this year composed of Professors McKie, Howe, Dargan, and Thornton, fell upon Bernard Shaw's well-known war comedy, "Arms and the Man." The cast was made up of a coterie of stars. Weeks and Coggin were the only men playing for a third year, although both Kerr and Johnson had had one year's experience on the stage. With these four experienced men to form the nucleus of the club, the prospect for a good season was very auspicions. After the "weeding out" it was found that three new stars had entered University dramatics in the guise of Freshmen—Applewhite, Webb and Meredith. All three of the new men did excellent work, and, if we may judge by what the newspapers said, were among the best men in the cast.

The season, which at the time this goes to press is only half over, has been a great success both from an artistic standpoint and from the viewpoint of the manager. Francis Clarkson has proved himself a manager of energy and ideas. The Dramatic Club has reached the proportions of a major college activity; and with the growing interest in the drama and dramatic production at Carolina the club bids fair to become a most important factor in the college life and one with a very important role in the future in the scheme of University Extension.

The Football Season of 1914

THE football season of 1914 was the most successful that Carolina has had for a decade, or perhaps for some decades. Coaches Trenchard, Cunningham, and Bluenthal put out a team, home-grown in all respects, which for the first time since the old days was given recognition throughout the South. With startling effect, the efficiency of the team was recognized in the opening games, and as a result of some of the scores of the first few contests, Carolina was heralded as a strong contender for the Southern Championship. In the first four games, sometimes playing as many as twenty-five men, the team scored two hundred and seven points, while her own goal remained uncrossed. When the team struck Georgia in midseason form, and gave them a 41 to 6 defeat, the Atlanta papers were unanimous in elaborate praise of the well-primed "Blue and White machine," describing it as a perfect arrangement of human cogs, smooth running and powerful. The conviction was general that Carolina would win out over Vanderbilt the following week. The week after the Georgia game was spent in training quarters at Gainesville, Ga., where a team made up of second string men gave the Riverside Academy team a 40 to 0 defeat. The team then traveled to Nashville, Tenn., where it defeated the Commodores 10 to 9. The effects of this game were seen in every later contest played by either team. Carolina was crippled to such an extent that she sent a team partially composed of scrubs against Davidson; and Davidson fought the hardest game of her season on a field that yielded only a 16 to 3 victory for N.C. Still in the openly evident slump, Carolina won out over V. M. I. in Charlotte by the score of 30 to 7, and over Wake Forest in Raleigh 12 to 7.

Then, after having won with honor the first half of our season's games, we lost, still with honor, the other half—the Virginia game. The powerful, welldriven Orange and Blue eleven defeated us again, yes, again! on Thanksgiving Day, to the tune of 20 to 3. And again with a spirit of disappointment, but with one just as full of courage as at the time when the team rushed out on the field in Richmond, the 'Varsity, the best we have had in years, again met in Hotel Jefferson, again elected Dave Tayloe Captain for next year, and entered upon a new season of football almost before the old one had closed, with a determination strengthened by every defeat that Carolina has suffered at the hands of Virginia for the past ten years.

Mentioned for All Southern or All South Atlantic positions we have such men as Tandy, Tayloe, Winston, Homewood, and Jones; while on the All State team we had six out of eleven players. Tandy was mentioned by Walter Camp among the hundred best University players in the country, and among the ten best centers.

The Baseball Season of 1914

O NLY four experienced men were present when the call for candidates for 'Varsity baseball was given in the spring of 1914. At the outset it was seen that a practically new team had to be built about Captain Karl Bailey, Hubert Bailey, Long, and Aycock as a nucleus. Coach Earle Mack began early to hunt for the three needed infielders, who might work the inside game led by Captain Bailey at second base. After a few weeks of uncertainty, Hardison at first base, Shields at short, and Lewis at third base, all new men, were stationed on the team, and the season began. But in the beginning it was evident that the team lacked real hitting ability, although the hitting was fair and the fielding sharp and snappy.

In the outfield the addition of Litchfield, an experienced amateur, was an asset. Woodall, with a well-known record from Wake Forest, was easily the man for catcher. These two men meant much to the team.

In addition to Aycock, Pitchers Williams and Watkins twirled sensational college ball in a number of games. The pitching staff was the best since the days of Lee.

The season started brilliantly when Carolina defeated Oak Ridge 7 to 0 in her first game. Later, two games with Wake Forest were won by 2 to 1 and 3 to 2 scores respectively. The team then won from Hampden Sidney 3 to 2, from William and Mary 1 to 0, from the University of West Virginia I4 to 5, lost to Vermont 3 to 2, to West Virginia Wesleyan 5 to 2, and won from Amherst 2 to 0.

The Baseball Season of 1914

Varied degrees of success attended the games until the beginning of the Virginia series in Durham. Williams was in excellent form, allowing the Virginians only four hits, but a timely three base hit and an error gave Virginia two runs and the game, since Carolina was unable to score. At Greensboro Virginia won again, 9 to 1.

The northern trip the last of April concluded the season; a season not filled with so many victories, but one filled with interest and sparkling new developments. Virginia took the third game in Charlottesville. At Lexington, Carolina won from V. M. I. 5 to 4. The Navy and Catholic University each nosed out a victory, and Princeton managed to win 3 to 2 after Carolina had the lead 2 to 1 until the ninth inning.

The Track Season of 1914

AROLINA entered the 1914 Track Season strong in number of men from the last year's team, but weakened by the absence of the Father of Track at the University, Coach Nat J. Cartmell. Dr. Kent J. Brown, himself a track athlete when at Pennsylvania, was asked to take charge as Coach during the last month, and under his guidance Carolina lined up for the start. The schedule and finances were kept together by the best manager a team ever had—"Pap" Whitaker.

Carolina Defeats V. P. I.

Coach, Manager, and fifteen men visited Blacksburg, Va., and Branch Bocock. On Miles Athletic Field, Carolina nosed out a victory by the final count of 60 to 57. Woolcott proved himself our most valuable point-getter by winning a total of 13. Our best performances were made by Spence on the mile. His time was 4.42. Smith kicked the einders on the 220 at a 22 3.5 clip, while Woolcott made the high hurdles in 16 2.5 seconds. Whiting and Patterson were there with the goods on the long distance, also Strong with his "big stick."

The S. A. I. A. A. Meet

Since meets with Wake Forest and South Carolina failed to materialize, the next and last meet was at Baltimore. In the two days contests at Homewood Park, Carolina entered ten men and scored as follows: Strong, tied for first place in Pole Vault, 4 points; Sears, third in the 100-yard dash, 2 points; Smith, third in the 220-yard dash, 2 points; Cobb, third in the 2-mile run, 2 points; Woolcott, fourth in broad jump, 1 point; Patterson, fourth in the quarter, 1 point; Whiting, fourth in the lalf-mile run, 1 point. The only new man to score and thereby win a monogram was Smith. Our total of 13 points gave us fourth place among the members of the S. A. I. A. A. The following is the order of places: Virginia 57, Georgetown 31, Hopkins 30, Carolina 13, V. P. I. 10, Washington and Lee 1, St. Johns 0, and Richmond College 0.

The Basketball Season of 1914-15

EACH new basketball season shows an improvement in 'Varsity material, and with an improvement in material a corresponding improvement in the quint which represents Carolina on the basketball court is the natural and inevitable result.

Coach Doak and Benbow inaugurated a class league, and throughout the season class games have been played. Incidentally the Freshman quint won the Class Championship. The results of such an activity can be seen only in later years; we must watch the coming seasons to see the growth of the seeds still under soil.

The 'Varsity season opened with three games with the Durham Y. M. C. A. These games were really scheduled as practice games before the regular season should begin, but in fact these games were as hard as any other games played during the season. Of the three, Carolina won one. The regular quint was at this time not in action. The regular season started on January 11, when Carolina defeated Elon College by the small score of 15 to 9. On January 16 Wake Forest won from us on the Raleigh floor by the seore of 26 to 23 in a hard, fast game played before a large crowd of enthusiastic fans. Our team came back, however, on February 2 and administered to Wake Forest a 32 to 20 defeat on the floor of Bynum Gymnasium. Then on February 8, at the Raleigh Auditorium, when there were nine possibilities of our winning to one of losing, we received the black ball, as usual, and consequently lost by a single point. On account of a tie, the game was continued through five minutes of extra time, at the end of which Virginia, with whom are tradition, horse shoes, and gods, headed the score 30 to 29. Next, Carolina traveled to Wake Forest, where the team was defeated 30 to 25.

On February 13 the team left on a trip of seven successive games. Traveling all day and playing basketball all night is a strenuous life, and by the time half the games were played the team was weak and crippled. Of those seven games we won three and lost four.

T IS a Know-Your-Home-State Club. Its nucleating belief is that intimate, loving acquaintance with the Mother-State means real education, vital culture, and effective training for competent citizenship. North Carolina day-before-yesterday is a challenge to patriotic pride; North Carolina day-after-tomorrow is a challenge to patriotic will.

What North Carolina is and is to be is the special concern of the North Carolina Club. It calls for the roundabout and the forward look. It is devoted to a study of the economic and social problems of the State; to problems that are less exciting but more important than politics.

The club was organized September 25th in Gerrard Hall. A large and interested crowd of Faculty members and students was present.

Prof. E. C. Branson is President, Mr. Frank P. Graham, Secretary, and Mr. E. R. Rankin, Treasurer. The Steering Committee of the club consists of Dr. J. G. de Roulhae Hamilton, Professor of History; George Eutsler, Greensboro; J. A. Capps, Bessemer City; L. Bruce Gunter, Wake County; Francis Bradshaw, Hillsboro. The Promotion and Publicity Committee consists of W. P. Fuller, Florida; S. R. Winters, Granville County; Fred R. Yoder, Catawba County; Hugh Hester, Granville County.

Affiliated with the North Carolina Club are the various County Clubs of students. These elubs are exploring the economic and social problems of their home counties. They follow the studies set forth in the new Extension Bulletin of the University Home-County Club Studies.

The North Carolina Club

These studies cover conditions, causes and consequences of economic and social sorts. They direct attention to the forces, agencies and influences, tendencies, drifts and movements that promote progress or hinder development.

The facts the County Clubs discover in course of their studies come up for interpretation, discussion and debate in the fortnightly meetings of the North Carolina Club.

For instance, during the fall months, the club heard able discussions of important present-day problems, as follows: "The Food-producing and the Wealth-retaining Power of Farn Communities," by Fred R. Yoder of the Catawba County Club; "Our Diminishing Meat Supply in North Carolina," by J. M. Daniel of the Davidson County Club; "Local Packing and Refrigerating Plants," by W. R. Taylor of the Franklin County Club; and "Inequalities in Farm-land Assessments in North Carolina," by E. S. Booth of the Durham County Club.

None of these discussions called for swelling, oratorical periods. None of these speakers knocked the stars about with loftily uplifted heads, to use Horace's phrase. But they well displayed the kind of practical common sense and competency that our friendly critics in the North say is temperamently lacking in the South. On the contrary, we have it in abundance, and the Carolina Club with its related County Clubs is developing it rapidly.

The investigational research of the North Carolina Club covers Historical Background, Natural Resources, Population and Occupations, Wealth and Taxation, Production of Wealth in Crops and Animal Products, Credits and Markets, Organization and Co-operation, Communication and Transportation, Schools and Colleges, Churches and Sunday Schools, Public Health and Sanitation, Rural and Urban Homes, Recreation and Amusements.

Here are studies in the near, the here, and the now; not in things far away in time and space. They are homespun studies of workaday puzzles and problems that call for solution every minute of every day in every community. They yield real culture to the student, but also they prepare for careers of efficient community service.

The value of the discipline is twofold: it is both individual and social. Individual culture and social efficiency have long needed joining together in comfortable comradeship in our schools and colleges.

Our University's Know-Your-Home-State Club, the North Carolina Club, is an approach to the solution of the age-old problem.
